Could this be considered plagiarism?

Every year, the United States alone contributes 97 billion pounds of carbon dioxide to the atmosphere from energy that is wasted by power devices when they are plugged in and powered off. This is called idle power consumption, and it a silent thief that greatly impacts the environment. That 97 billion pound waste is the equivalent of every citizen of the US throwing 42 bags of trash into the air every year, thus contributing to 1% of the world's carbon emissions annually.
