Lydia Porter is in her third year at Seattle Pacific University and is pursuing a self-designed degree in Music Business. In her time at SPU, Lydia has studied trumpet with Dr. Brian Chin and Dr. Edward Castro, and has been a member of the Wind Ensemble, Symphony Orchestra, Concert Choir, and Jazz Ensemble. As well as playing trumpet, Lydia also sings, plays piano, and French horn. Through the design of her own major, Lydia hopes to combine her love of music and passion for business into a career where she can best serve her community and keep the joy of music alive. Lydia is so thankful for the opportunities provided her by the SPU faculty to nurture and grow both in education and desire for knowledge. The music department has allowed Lydia to pursue multiple areas of learning, and at the same time has cultivated her appreciation of music. Lydia is grateful for her family, friends, and SPU faculty who have inspired her and enriched her life through music.
