RE: Notification of Information Disclosures

In accordance with federal regulations issued by the U.S. Department of Education, Seattle Pacific University is required to notify students at least annually about various University policies and information. To that end, the University has posted links to information about the following topics on its Consumer Information website.

- General Institutional Information (e.g., academic programs and policies, costs and refunds,
- privacy of student education records under FERPA)
- Student Financial Assistance (e.g., grants, scholarships, loans, student employment)
- Health and Safety (e.g., health services, drug free school policy, campus security)
- Student Outcomes (e.g., retention rates, graduation rates, job placements)
- Athletic Program Information (e.g., graduation rates for students receiving athletics-related aid)
- Teacher Preparation Program Report

This notice is sent for informational purposes and no action is required.
